

high school

RESOURCE
AXIS.ORG

Faith at home

high school

Connecting Parents,
Teens, & Jesus in a Disconnected World

Website: Axis.org

If you are looking for a gospel-centered ministry that specializes in equipping parents, this is it! Our friends over at Axis work every day “to build lifelong faith by helping parents and caring adults talk with their kids, one conversation at a time” (axis.org).

The content and resources do a great job of bridging culture and faith. One way you can have access to this material is through an email subscription called The Culture Translator (it’s completely free and worth it).

They emphasize a relational model called the One Conversation Journey, using everyday moments to spark gospel-centered conversations with your students.

The online database is full of practical resources for parents, including: parent guides, videos, kits, podcasts, newsletters, and more!

Their model depends on generosity, so if you feel led to support them financially, that is completely up to you.

