We're Fine... Just Busy

Big Idea:

Disconnection doesn't usually happen because something is wrong, it happens because life gets full.

Why This Matters:

Most couples don't drift apart because of one big issue. It happens slowly, missed conversations, constant distractions, and running in different directions. You're not in crisis. You're just busy. But over time, busy can quietly turn into distant.

Try This:

Sometime today, ask one simple question: "What's something that's been on your mind lately?" Then do one thing that matters more than anything else: listen. Don't fix it. Don't correct it. Just be present.

Marriage Tip:

Your kids don't need a perfect marriage. They benefit most from parents who stay connected.

Scripture:

"Above all, love each other deeply..." — 1 Peter 4:8
